Background

The Director, Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Services, Odisha, Cuttack, intends to undertake AI in Goat using goat semen under the scheme "33-2403-104-3337-20002-Integrated Livestock Development Programme-78694-Small Animal Development Center" for quick genetic up-gradation by using Black Bengal and Ganjam germ-plasms and for improving the herd maintained by the goat farmers for enhancing the herd productivity within a shorter period of time.

Artificial insemination is an advance tool for the breed improvement along with productivity of the goat population. This technique will be used for the first time in Odisha. In the present scenario, there is a scarcity in the availability of quality breeding bucks due to early castration and slaughter of male goats for meat purpose. As goats are mostly reared by small, marginal and landless farmers, with flock size of 3- 5 goats, it is economically unviable to keep a breeding buck for a small flock. Thus, the females are bred by nondescript males' resulting in loss of precious germplasm of the region. To prevent the dilution of valuable germplasm by indiscriminate mating and to preserve its purity and propagate this unique germplasm, State Government intends to promote artificial insemination in goat by using local germplasm like Black Bengal and Ganjam breed of Buck

Objective of the Scheme:

The objectives of scheme are

- To genetically improve the goat population by introducing Artificial Insemination using semen of superior sires.
